If this happened online, what would you do?

Tick A, B or C.

1. Your best friend sends you a message and asks what you are doing at the weekend and where you will be. Do you tell them?

I'd never tell anyone where I am online.

It's my best friend so I'd tell them straight away.

I'd make sure the message was only being sent to them and then I would send it.

2. You took a great selfie of you and your friends at the weekend and want to share it on social media where you have over 200 friends. However, you have only actually met 34 of them before in the offline world. Would you post the picture?

Yes, because I like the picture so other people will too.

I would check with my friends first to make sure it was OK.

Yes, because my friends have said it's OK before.

3. You are part of a group chat with some of your school friends and you think your friend from football would really like to join. Do you just add them?

I'd never add someone into a group chat if they didn't know people.

I would check with my friend first then add them.

Yes definitely, they will find this group chat so funny!

4. One of your online friends sends you a nude photo and asks for you to send one to them as well. Do you send one?

I'd send a nude photo because they sent me one first.

I'd tell an adult I trust straight away because they shouldn't ask me to do that.

I'd delete their photo and not send one of my own.

5. You are part of a large group chat where people have added in their friends. Most of the people in the chat you haven't actually met before in the offline world. One of your school friends asks you in the group to tell them your email address so they can add you into a new game. Do you share your email address in the group chat?

I'd never give away my email address online.

Yes, because it's my school friend who asked.

I would give my school friends my email address but not in a group chat.

6. You've been stuck on a tricky level of a game for a few days now and one of the other players offers to help you. They ask for your password and bank details, so they can set up a hack on your account to get you to the next level. Do you give them the information?

A

No way, this is my personal information and I don't know this person.

B

Yes, because I'm really stuck, and they can help me.

C

If anyone asks for my personal information online, then I always check with someone first if it's OK.

7. Your friend sends you an underwear photo of someone else and tells you to send it to everyone you know. Do you send it?

A

I'd send it if my friend said it was ok.

B

I'd tell an adult that I trust because you shouldn't share underwear photos of others online.

C

I wouldn't send it.

8. You have been playing in a new gaming server with some very good players. They ask you if you want to be part of their video chat to discuss gaming tactics. Do you join?

A

Yes, because I want to get better and they will tell me some good tactics.

B

I'd never join any group chat or video chat with people I don't know.

C

I would check with an adult first to make sure it was safe to join.

9. You are at your school for a summer fair and having a great time with your school friends. You want to share this online and go live on social media. Do you go live where over 200 people could watch?

A

Yes, I think everyone will want to see!

B

No, I'd never go live from somewhere that would give away where I am.

C

I'd check with an adult first to see if they thought it would be safe.

10. You see that lots of people on social media have added information into their bios which appear just under their profile picture. They share things such as their age, which town they are from and links to their other accounts. Do you add this information to yours?

A

Yes, I'd do it if everyone else was.

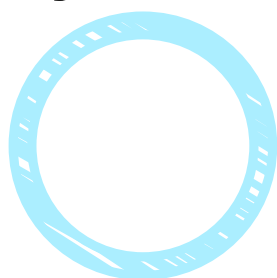

B

Great job! You always make sure you are 'sharing with care' online. Try sharing the top tips below with your friends and family to help them to do the same.

17-23

You try to take care before you share

Well done for stopping to think before sharing your personal information or anyone else's when online. Use the top tips below to help you share with care in the future.

10-16

Be aware before you share

Sometimes we can share personal information, images and videos of ourselves and others online without even realising but try to:

- » Stop and think before sharing your personal information, images and videos with people you only know online.
- » Always ask permission before sharing someone else's personal information, images and videos.
- » Check with a trusted adult if you're not sure or someone puts pressure on you to share something online.

Top Tips

1. It's OK to share things with your friends and family online but remember these need to be people you actually know and spend time with in the offline world. Even then, make sure you only share information privately with them and not publicly online.
2. It's best to always check with people first before sharing pictures of them online. Remember not everyone will want pictures of them online as pictures/videos can give away people's personal information.
3. It's best to check with someone first before adding them to a group chat or game. When we add someone to a group chat or game then everyone else there can see some of their personal information, like phone numbers, profile pictures and names.
4. It's not ok for anyone to ask you to send a nude or underwear photo. Always tell an adult that you trust if someone asks you to do this as it can have serious consequences.
5. Never share your personal information in group chats with people you have never actually met before. Remember that if you reply to someone's message in a group chat then everyone else in the chat can read it as well.
6. Never give away your personal log in details or bank information to anyone online, even if they are offering to help you. This is personal information which might allow someone to make changes to your game or take real money.
7. Never share nude or underwear photos of someone else online even if you have their permission or someone else's.
8. If someone online asks for the details of any of your other online accounts (Skype, Snapchat, Xbox etc) then think about what personal information they might be able to see on that account. If you're ever unsure then check with a trusted adult first.
9. Always check who you might be sharing with as going live can mean that all your followers are able to tune in. Protect personal information when going live, especially your location as this is where you currently are.
10. Remember that some information on social media will always stay public, even if you lock down your account to private. This would include your name, profile picture, comments on public posts and bios. Never share your personal information in your bio where everyone can see it.
